Message from the Chair

County Commission Republicans Engaged in Radical Partisan Gerrymandering

By Alex Piland, DPSC Chair

There is so much happening, I hardly know where to begin. Most egregiously, the Republican majority Sandoval County Commission got it wrong— again!

Many turned out for the presentation of the racistly drafted Sandoval County Commission redistricting maps wherein the Native American communities in our county are shoved into one district. This results in a weak plurality of less than 44 percent and diminishes the voice of Native communities in our county. For shame!

The Sandoval County Commission is using our taxes to pay an ousted Republican Senator from Hagerman, Rod Adair. Adair was once touted as being a cosponsor of "legislation to eliminate partisan political redistricting and create a bi-partisan redistricting commission."

Hmmmm. It appears that bipartisanship is only applicable when the Republicans are in the minority.

Go to Sandovaldemocrats.org for information regarding our efforts to stop this outrageous action of the Republicans on the Sandoval County Commission.

What's more, Adair's social media opposition to supporting Indigenous People's Day tells us all who he is, what he is, and grossly depicts his personal politics.

Contact the Republican members of the Commission via telephone and email here https://www.sandovalcountynm.gov/commission/. Let them know that you support equitable districting in our county.

Also, turn out for the Sandoval County Commission meeting on December 9 to give public comment on the vote for these poorly constructed redistricting maps. And attend Vice Chair Isaac Chavez's presentation on December 7 for a more indepth explanation.

Help Team Teresa!

Calling all Sandoval Democrats! Team Teresa is gearing up for the 2022 election cycle and we need your help. The redistricting process has pushed a key portion of our campaign timeline—petition collection, preparation for, and participation in the pre-primary convention—into the first three months of 2022. January through March of 2022 will be a hectic three months. We want to get organized and ready to hit the ground running now, so that we are ready come January 1st!

Ahora es cuando to volunteer! If you are willing to help as a Petition Captain, signature collector, data volunteer, or run as a delegate for pre-primary, fill out this google form today. If you have any questions, please reach out via email to our Political Coordinator Kat at kcook@teresaforall.com or by phone at (505)819-0574. We will be hosting information sessions later this year.

Volunteer Interest Form: https://forms.gle/CBtUXKXkcvBjoiC26

Volunteer Role Descriptions

Petition Captain Overview:

Petition Captains will act as leaders in their counties/communities to collect petition signatures for Teresa Leger Fernandez (NM03) and get her back on the ballot for the 2022 election cycle. Responsibilities include:

- Managing and communicating with volunteers who are collecting signatures.
 - Training volunteers on how to properly fill out petition forms.
 - Making sure that volunteers are aware of and attending local events.
- Collecting, and checking that petition forms are filled out correctly. Mailing completed forms back to or dropping them off with Kat.
- Attending weekly meetings via Zoom with Kat and other Petition Captains to report back numbers of signatures collected, hear campaign updates, and bring any questions or issues back to the campaign.

Signature Collector Overview:

Signature Collectors will collect signatures to help get Teresa Leger Fernandez (NM03) re-elected in 2022! Responsibilities include:

- Collecting signatures from registered democrats in the district.
 - This can be done at local events, by canvassing, or just by talking with family, friends, and neighbors.
- Reporting numbers and returning completed forms to their county Petition Captain, or directly to the campaign.

Land Acknowledgment

Land Acknowledgement

We as the Democratic Party of Sandoval County recognize that Sandoval County is located on the ancestral land of Indigenous People. We acknowledge and honor our land caretakers and commit to retain and advocate for the traditions and cultural knowledge Indigenous People have practiced since time immemorial.

Making A Difference in Sandoval County

County Commissioner Advances the Safety and Well-Being of County Residents . . . and Our Pets

By Katherine Bruch, Sandoval County Commissioner, District 1

I took office on January 1, 2019, and hit the ground running by sponsoring a resolution in support of state legislation to fund spay and neuter programs. Since that time, I have worked hard for the residents of District 1 and those of Sandoval County.

I spearheaded the creation of the first animal shelter in Sandoval County and am continuing to work to develop a permanent facility.

I led the effort for Sandoval County Fire and Rescue and the Sheriff's Office to obtain new equipment and upgrades to communications, which has led to faster response times and better levels of service. I assisted the Town of Bernalillo by having an ambulance stationed in the town to provide faster response times by paramedics, and I worked to create a fire district that better serves the Town of Cochiti, Pena Blanca, and Sile.

I worked to locate the new Fire Administration building in the Town of Bernalillo on Route 550, which saved the county money and gives Fire and Rescue enough space for offices and training facilities.

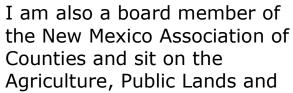

The issue of sand and gravel mining has been a long-standing problem for residents in Placitas, Algodones, Bernalillo, and the Pueblos of Santa Ana and San Felipe. I am continuing to collaborate with congressional representatives and senators to enact legislation that would prohibit any mining on the Buffalo Tract.

I have also provided county funding for a number of programs and local entities, including:

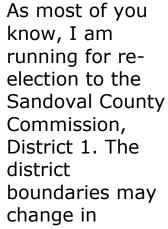

- Rebuilding Together Sandoval.
- CASA Partners 4 NM Kids.
- Sandoval County Historical Society.
- Placitas Community Library.

And I am in the process of distributing funds to: the Algodones Water District; Pena Blanca Water District; the Town of Bernalillo; the Town of Cochiti Lake; the San Antonio de las Huertos Land Grant; and Las Acequias de Placitas.

I serve as a board member of the Mid Region Council of Governments and sit on the Water Resources Committee.

Natural Resources Committee.

the next month, but I am confident that the district will still contain the Town of Bernalillo, the Placitas area, and some of the surrounding areas.

I can't win this election without your help. We will be needing volunteers and financial contributions. Please go to my website at www.katherinebruch4sandovalcountycommission.com for more information.

Republican County Commissioners Set to Impose Radically Gerrymandered Redistricting Maps

Join our Zoom: Republican-inspired maps got it wrong, Democrats tell why, propose alternative Isaac Chavez, vice-chair of the Democratic Party of Sandoval County, will talk about the problems with the proposed maps creating new Sandoval County Commission Districts. They represent an attempt to create Republican leaning districts for three of the five seats on the commission.

Public comments remain open on the Sandoval County website. The County Commission is expected to vote on the new districts at its December 9 meeting.

Public comments and attendance at the December meeting are encouraged.

Please join us for this information meeting.

Proposed Redistricting Plans Are an Injustice

By Laura M. Montoya, Former Sandoval County Treasurer and $\underline{\text{Candidate for}}$ State Treasurer

Re-printed from the Rio Rancho Observer with permission.

The Nov. 18 Sandoval County Commission meeting seemed no different from the times we had to fight right-to-work-for-less and fracking proposals.

Small and tribal communities filled the room because they were most impacted by the mapping that was done by GOP contractor, Rod Adair.

"Adair literally told me that he was not going to speak to Native leaders regarding their concerns."

the river more than 20 miles away.

This gerrymandering and divisiveness would make three of the county commission districts so Republican-leaning that the minority of people within those districts as well as the other two districts become voiceless.

Currently, two of the three seats held by Republican commissioners are swing districts.

My purpose of writing is to share the injustice of the maps created by splitting up small communities in two or three parts, like Bernalillo and Placitas, and throwing Corrales in a district across Swing districts are healthy because the people wanting to serve in that district must listen to all their concerns to find common ground.

The injustice of process. To use the delay in receiving the census data as an excuse to not contact the communities in which you are redistricting is appalling!

Adair literally told me that he was not going to speak to Native leaders regarding their concerns.

As a contractor, it is his responsibility to bring as many people to the table to have the most perspective for a better outcome.

You don't get paid by our tax dollars to force your agenda down our throats and think it's OK.

Adair didn't reach out to our mayors of our smaller communities for their perspective, either.

We have more pueblos in Sandoval County than anywhere in New Mexico, three Navajo chapters and the Apaches.

Adair's proposal is for all Native people to be lumped into one district. They are currently in two commission districts. They are setting up one county commissioner for failure by making them travel the largest part of our district to reach out to 12 tribal governments.

And to those that don't care about fair representation and every constituent having a voice, keep in mind that the economic success of Sandoval County is in part because of tribal communities.

They own and hire many county residents at their three casinos, gas stations, resorts — some that are big enough to use for large national and international conferences — five golf courses and many other amenities and infrastructure that bring in gross receipts tax, jobs and thousands of tourists/visitors, which allows other business to prosper.

They also help with countytribal partnerships like fire and police safety.

These maps and whoever supports them are saying, "We want all that you Natives bring to our economic prosperity, but we don't want you to have a voice."

It's scandalous that one of them is even running for governor!

The county commission will be voting on a map during their Dec. 9 meeting.

If not done fairly, the alternative is that they are going to get sued again and we as taxpayers are going to have to foot the bill.

Republican Commissioners Pursue Ruthless Power Grab

At the last Sandoval County Commission meeting, Rod Adair, President, New Mexico Demographic Research, presented four maps for establishing new commission districts for the next decade. Such radical change requires substantial justification, and Adair attempted to offer one. He asserted the current maps "crack" or disperse Natives in order to diminish their voting power and claimed his maps give Natives a district they can influence.

Sandoval County does have a long history of ignoring or attacking its Native

All represent a radical departure from previous districts. All had one district containing "Adair never actually bothered to talk to anyone from a pueblo or chapter house. Perhaps if he did, he would appreciate these connections and relationships."

nearly all of Sandoval County's Native American population. From Torreon and Jicarilla, to Kewa, Cochiti, and San Felipe, all or nearly all of the many distinct pueblos and Native groups were to be placed together, regardless of their consent, geography, or connections to other areas of our county.

communities.
But Native Americans are important to this county.
Their success is Sandoval's success, whether through their businesses and financial institutions, or their unique and vibrant cultures. Sandoval's Native communities unquestionably deserve a say in how this county is run. Do any of Mr. Adair's proposals truly give them that say? They do not.

If the more than 18,000 American Indian or Alaskan Native peoples in the county were concentrated into one district, they would constitute a 61 percent majority. But it's impossible for Adair to create such a district. Not all Natives live on the pueblos; many live in the cities and outlying areas. So, Adair creates a district encompassing all pueblos and chapter houses giving Natives a weak plurality. Obviously, this approach places Natives in one corner of one district so they can be ignored.

The term for this is "packing," for which Adair offered a numerical definition—placing 80 percent or more of a group in one district. He then facetiously waved away the concern about packing by saying that the concentrated district only totaled 43 percent Native.

Taking Sandoval County as a whole, Adair has indeed placed over 80 percent of its Native population in one district. But under the Voting Rights Act, such a district must have above 50 percent of a given minority group of voting age. None of Mr. Adair's maps come even close.

You must also consider the effect this extreme gerrymandering will have on the whole of the commission. Adair's district guarantees that the commission remains under the permanent control of one party. Is this listening to Natives?

Wouldn't Natives, like everyone else in the county, want districts based around their infrastructure and residences? Native Americans have been a constant presence in my life. They are so familiar that when I travel out of state, I feel the absence of their culture. Their children attend school with our children, they shop in our town, and we work at their businesses. Myriad relationships cross reservation boundaries.

When someone draws a line across these very real human connections, I question what they actually know about the county. Adair never actually bothered to talk to anyone from a pueblo or chapter house. Perhaps if he did, he would appreciate these connections and relationships. Perhaps this could have been an opportunity for Sandoval County to actually listen to its Native communities. But I suspect he and the Republican commissioners he represents never actually cared.

Sneaky Shenanigans in Sandoval County Redistricting

By Bert Cox, Sandoval County Democrat, Corrales

Copyright ©2021, The Paper

One of my core beliefs is that bad things happen when nobody is looking. Right now bad things are about to happen in Sandoval County, the fourth largest county in New Mexico. While the rest of us are worried about COVID,

Thanksgiving,
Build Back Better, and redistricting at the state and national level,
the Sandoval
County Commission is trying to work

quietly and without fanfare to gerrymander the county's commission districts for a permanent Republican majority.

Sandoval County is generally assumed by politicos to be "purple." In the 2020 presidential election, 55% went for Biden, but more often votes are closer to a 50-50 split between Republicans and Democrats. The current County Commission is divided between three Republican and two Democratic commissioners. Districts 1 and 5 tend to vote Democratic. Districts 3 and 4 are usually solidly Republican. District 2 has been a swing district in the past, although in the past two election cycles it has been won by Trump enthusiast and current Republican current for current for governor, Jay Block.

Until last week, I had never given a thought to redistricting County Commission districts. I am pretty sure that 99+% of Americans are in the same boat. Then someone pointed

"Apparently, the Commission, especially Chairman David Heil, thought it could sneak this through without anybody looking." out to me what was going on in the commission. The Sandoval Commission had hired a "demographic consulting company" run/owned by former GOP State Senator Rod Adair, to come up with potential plans to redistrict the county.

The core strategy behind Mr. Adair's plans is to "pack" all Democratic voters into two districts and Republican voters into the other three. He does this by ignoring many of the rules that govern redistricting: keeping districts geographically compact, minimizing the number of split political subdivisions, preserving the cores of previous districts, and protecting and taking into account the concerns of likeminded communities within whole districts without splitting them between districts.

His main strategy is to tear the Village of Corrales, whole or in part, out of the very compact District 2 and attach it to Placitas, across the Rio Grande, 20 miles away. His other strategy is to "pack" the widely-dispersed Native American population (seven Native pueblos and all or portions of six Tribal entities/lands) into one giant district over 3,000 square miles in area. Mr. Adair claims he did this to protect the voting power of "Indians" (his words). Somehow he forgot to ask any of the Native American communities what they actually wanted and whether this proposal was acceptable to the majority of them. (Judging by the Native turnout at last night's meeting, it is not.) Finally, he massacres the small town of Bernalillo and divides it into as many as three different commission districts.

Apparently, the Commission, especially Chairman David Heil, thought it could sneak this through without anybody looking. The plans were set to be presented at the Sandoval County Commission meeting on November 18, but when Chairman Heil found out that local Democratic, Native American, other grassroots groups, and individual concerned citizens were planning on attending the meeting, he sent out a hyperbolic plea to local Republicans to fight back, tarring Commissioner Kathy Bruch in the process. Per the email sent out to Sandoval Republicans, "The Bruch plan is being presented as the fair plan however only a far-left Democrat could be so delusional that they can think the plan is fair to anyone but themselves." By the way, there is no "Bruch plan". There was another plan, presented by a local citizen, Isaac Chavez, that followed all of the redistricting principles and that Commissioner Bruch had. nothing to do with. In last night's meeting, Chairman Heil spent 15 minutes crossexamining Mr. Chavez like Johnny Cochran defending O.J. Simpson.

Although no voting has yet happened, it is apparent that the Republican commissioners (David Heil, Jay Block and Michael Meek) are resolved to ram through these egregious gerrymanders. Commissioner Block's statement at the end of the meeting's public comment period was "elections have consequences," which I interpreted to mean, "we really don't give a hoot what all of you whiners have to say...We are doing it our way."

GOP Redistricting Plans Are Unfair, inequitable

By Judith Gordon, DPSC Secretary

Re-printed from the Rio Rancho Observer with permission

At the start of the recent county commission meeting, we all said the pledge of allegiance. The commission's Republicans are attempting to draw district boundaries that are purposely designed to not achieve fair and equitable representation for everyone.

But based on the redistricting plans that were presented by former GOP Instead, the plans are a shameless power grab designed to entrench minority Republican rule for years to come.

The Republican plans are radical partisan gerrymandering at its worst.

County.

However, the Republican plans rip apart small, cohesive communities such as Bernalillo, Placitas and in one instance, Corrales, and they relegate voters of color to districts meticulously crafted to negate their political power.

They fracture Hispanic communities across multiple districts, and they improperly concentrate Native Americans in a single district.

The Republican plans are intentionally designed to suppress the voices of those who aren't Republicans.

They provide no incentive whatsoever for Republican commissioners to reach out to minority, independent and Democratic voters.

The plans allow the needs of unfavored constituents to be ignored without any fear of consequences.

In other words, they eliminate real accountability for these commissioners.

On behalf of Sandoval County citizens, Isaac Chavez offered an alternative plan that, in contrast, is fair, equitable and, importantly, nonpartisan.

Titled the Fair Plan, it follows accepted redistricting rules and practices, and it does not favor one political party over the other.

The Fair Plan incorporates partisan and racial fairness, it maintains community boundaries and it respects communities of interest.

Simply put, the Fair Plan respects democracy, and it respects the voters of Sandoval County.

The gerrymandered Republican plans were developed without consultation with key stakeholders.

These plans fold, spindle and mutilate our communities almost beyond recognition.

I urge those in Sandoval County who care about democracy to tell their commissioner to use the plan put forth by Mr. Chavez as the basis for developing a genuinely fair, equitable and nonpartisan plan in consultation with county stakeholders.

Executive Committee Update New Ward Maps Are Coming to Sandoval County

By Judy Gordon, DPSC Secretary

Because of the rapid growth of Sandoval County, our ward structure no longer serves us well. The current maps are inequitable, geographically unsound, and do not adequately represent the communities that should have a presence within our county party.

Under the leadership of Vice Chair Isaac Chavez, the Executive Committee has developed a proposed ward structure that increases the number of wards from 5 to 13 and addresses the issues with our existing maps.

Miss Information

No Child Should Go to Bed Hungry

By Judy Gordon, DPSC Secretary

With poverty being the most immediate cause of hunger and New Mexico one of the poorest states in the country, it is nevertheless shocking and insupportable that over a quarter of New Mexico's children face food insecurity.

Inspired by the tireless work of the Sandoval County Federation of Democratic Women (SCFDW) to Feed Rio Rancho Kids, Miss Information dug into the problem of childhood hunger in our state.

New Mexico is ranked 50 in food security by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. According to New Mexico Voices for Children, 26 percent of New Mexico's children currently face food insecurity, an increase of four percentage points from pre-COVID-19 levels. The rate of food insecurity in Sandoval County is 22 percent, an increase of nearly 5 percentage points over prepandemic levels.

Definitions

Food Insecurity: Limited or uncertain access to adequate food for an active, healthy life due to lack of money or other resources.

Hunger: A potential consequence of food insecurity that, because of prolonged involuntary lack of food, results in discomfort, illness, weakness, or pain that goes beyond the usual uneasy sensation.

Food Desert: Geographic area of at least 1 mile (in urban settings) or 10 miles (in rural) from the nearest supermarket or large grocery store.

Source: New Mexico Voices for Children https://www.nmvoices.org/wp-content/uploads/2021/03/Food-Insecurity-Rpt-Sept-2021-update.pdf (accessed November 29, 2021)

source: USDA Economic Research Service https://www.ers.usda.gov/topics/food-nutrition-assistance/food-security-in-the-us/key-statistics-graphics.aspx (accessed November 29, 2021)

Lack of adequate nutrition in childhood sets the stage for a lifetime of problems. Food insecurity and hunger impair children's physical health, leading to higher rates of hospitalization and chronic health conditions. It also harms mental health and behavior, causing problems in school, interpersonal relationships, and other important aspects of everyday life.

Inadequate nutrition puts children on a path to becoming less educated, less healthy, and less prosperous adults.

Food insecurity results largely from New Mexico's high poverty rate. New Mexicans experiencing poverty are disproportionately Black, Native American, and Hispanic. Low-income New Mexican families spend an average of one-third of their income on food, while households earning more than $70,000 spend a much lower 4 percent. As a result, low-income households frequently have to decide whether to buy food or use their limited resources to satisfy other basic needs such as paying for rent, utilities, or health care.

In 2015, over 40 percent of Sandoval County residents lived in food deserts, areas where food is harder to obtain. Lack of fresh produce and a diet of low-quality, highly processed foods are associated with chronic diseases such as obesity, diabetes, heart disease, and cancer. Added sugars such as high-fructose corn syrup are particularly harmful.

School lunch and breakfast programs help keep children from going hungry, as do

Federal nutrition programs such as SNAP, the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (formerly called food stamps).

The more generous and inclusive child tax credit provision of the American Rescue Plan has significantly reduced child hunger but will expire at the end of the year if Congress does not renew it.

Numerous state programs also mitigate child hunger, and food banks and other nonprofit organizations are dedicated to hunger relief.

But none of these efforts are enough. We must continue to press for economic development that will lift New Mexicans out of poverty and a robust safety net so that no child goes hungry in the richest country on earth.

Voices for Children, Ending
Childhood Food Insecurity in New Mexico, Derek Lin MPH,
